The Average Lifespan of Golf Gear and How to Extend it

The Wear and Tear of Golf Gear and Apparel

Knowing how long balls, gloves and other golf gear lasts helps to put things into perspective. Their lifespan depends on usage, quality and maintenance. Here is a general guide:

Golf Gloves	10-20 rounds or 4-8 weeks
Golf Balls	1-5 rounds, an amateur golfer loses 1-3 balls per golf round
Tees	Plastic tees last multiple rounds. Wooden tees tend to break more often.
Golf Towel	about 1 year, sometimes longer
Golf Shoes	1-3 years
Golf Apparel	2-4 years
Golf Clubs	Drivers & Woods: 3-5 years Irons & Wedges: 5-10 years Putters: 10+ years

Extend The Use of your Golf Gear and Apparel

With a couple of simple tricks golf gear can easily last over a longer period. Here is how:

Golf Gloves	Rotating multiple gloves extends their lifespan. Keep your glove in a zip locked bag when not in use. It keeps the leather soft and comfy for repeat wear.
Golf Balls	Premium balls can last longer if undamaged. Marking your balls can also help to finding them easier or not loosing them as often.
Tees	Some plastic tees don't break as easily as wooden tees. Colourful tees are easier spotted after you hit. Use tees left on the tee-box from previous players. Especially on a Par 3 you can easily use short or broken tees lying around.
Golf Towel	Wash regularly to maintain effectiveness. Microfiber towels last longer than cotton towels.
Golf Shoes	Rotating your shoes extends their life if you have 2 or more pairs. Clean and Care for them. For more tips visit "How To Keep Women's Golf Shoes Clean".
Golf Apparel	Wash golf clothing according to care labels Poly-blends typically last longer even after repeated washing.
Golf Clubs	Brush them regularly to keep clean. Avoid soaking them as water will get into the area between club head and shaft. Regular re-gripping extends their lifespan.
